

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a keyboard including a plurality of keys, each key has a key top, a guiding structure that includes linking 5 units pivotally movable in response to vertical motion of the key top, an elastic member to be pressed down by the vertical motion of the key top, and a contact which is operatively associated with the vertical motion of the key top. The 10 guiding structure includes a common unit which is shared with all the other keys.